A LETTER FROM THE PROVOST

Dear Friends,

Teaching, scholarship and service: Which is the greatest of these? This question is really a nonstarter since all three, in their own authentic ways, make up the life of a true academic. But for the moment, let us focus on scholarship (the middle child), since that is what we celebrate in the following pages, and with good reason!

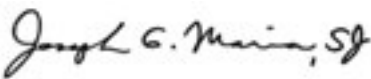

As you read through this booklet, I hope you will see what I continue to discover with deep gratitude during these recent days, namely the ever-increasing momentum of scholarship at Le Moyne College. Across our three schools, faculty are moving steadily and thoughtfully through advancing levels of scholarship and thereby strengthening the dynamics of teaching and learning that transpire within our classrooms. In so doing, they advance the mission and identity of Le Moyne as a Catholic and Jesuit college with growing distinction.

Being a wise person is, then, a question of love, of seeking that wisdom that wants to be found in history and in creation. The intellectual apostolate directs us toward the wisdom involved in discernment by which we become capable of perceiving where God is in the worldwide, global and local situation. This enables us to choose what is best for the glory of God, that is, for a full human life.

— Rev. Arturo Sosa, S.J.

With this sentiment of Father Sosa, superior general of the Society of Jesus, in mind, please take some time to pour over this booklet and see for yourselves how the faculty of Le Moyne are bringing our beloved College and its mission into a next phase of evolution. As St. Paul wrote in his First Letter to the Corinthians, “These three remain: faith, hope and love. But the greatest of these is love.” In a lesser yet still noble way, the pillars of teaching, scholarship and service remain in the life of any liberal arts college worth its salt. All three are wonderful on their own merit. For the moment, let us celebrate our scholarship!

Yours faithfully,

Joseph G. Marina, S.J.
Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs
