Blending Reality with Virtual Reality
J.P. Rancy ’16 uses GoogleGlass in brainstorming ways to make maritime navigation safer under the direction of Martha Grabowski, Ph.D., a leader in the field of maritime safety.

Working to Restore Memories
Fulbright Scholar Lara DeRuisseau, Ph.D., possesses a keen understanding of how precious and irreplaceable our memories are and was inspired to put her own mind to work researching Alzheimer’s disease.

A Commitment to Conservation
Jason Luscier, Ph.D., regularly rises before dawn to study avian life, but he is no ordinary bird watcher. He is using his research in the field to help shape future wildlife conservation plans.

A Voice to End Discrimination
Darius Makuja, Ph.D., used his powerful voice to speak out against the scourge of racism before one of the world’s most august bodies – the United Nations.

From Court to Classroom
Delia Popesu, Ph.D., inspires her students to wrestle with weighty questions of peace and social justice in one of the world’s most venerable sites – the International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands.

Taking the Global Stage
At the Shakespeare festival in Venice, a student cast and crew put a 21st century twist on a 17th century masterpiece.

Alumni Network Connection
Our connections reach far and wide, and that gives our students a leg up on taking that critical first step in their careers.

Work that Sets Your Heart on Fire
Mackenzie Irvin ’15 shaped young lives – and changed her own – as a teacher in the Jesuit Volunteer Corps.

Living a Dream
An internship turned full-time job at ESPN fulfills a dream for communication major Thomas Stamas ’14.
